

May To Start On Sentence

Jail Term For An ex-Legislator For Bribery

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(P)—Former Rep. Andrew J. May (D-Ky.) today was ordered to start serving on Saturday an 8 to 24-month jail sentence for wartime bribery and conspiracy.

Federal Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut turned down May's appeal for a reduction of the term. May was not in the courtroom to hear the decision. The judge directed him to turn himself over to the marshal of the eastern district of Kentucky Saturday. May was at his home in Prestonburg.

Henry A. Garsson and Murray Garsson, heads of a $75,000,000 wartime munitions empire from which May was convicted of accepting bribes, also were ordered to jail. In their cases the order was effective immediately.

Convicted In 1947

May and the Garsson brothers were convicted in July, 1947, and received identical sentences in connection with $53,000 in bribes.

May was accused of using his influence as chairman of the old House Military Affairs committee to get the brothers war contracts. Judge Schweinhaut said that because of May's physical condition, he would recommend that May serve his sentence at Ashland, Ky., penitentiary which is near his home.

May based his appeal for a reduction in sentence on his failing health (he is now 74), poverty, and the bars that a jail term would raise against him in future public activity or practice as a lawyer.

Lawyers for the Garsson brothers pleaded that they had lost practically all their money, and that they had done valuable war work.

Murray Garsson, tears rolling down his face, beseeched the judge to double his own sentence and let his brother go free.

Henry Garsson asked for our nation they were thankful for the homes that they, as free people, were able to carve out of the wilderness," Mr. Jones said, "—homes that anyone in this room would be ashamed to have for a coal bin." Mr. Jones continued, "These sturdy forefathers came to this country to enjoy freedom from oppression, and to build their lives on the principles of a philosophy expounded by a man who lived two thousand years ago in a country, smaller than Missouri, and which we in this great central west would consider unfit for cultivation. In one of their significant documents, the Declaration of Independence, they wrote 'we believe—in the inherent right of men—to the pursuit of happiness'—the 'pursuit,'" he continued, "because they did not paternalistically guarantee happiness to any man, but were anxious to guarantee to all regardless of race, creed, or politics the right to that pursuit."

After listening to nearly an hour of argument from the three lawyers for the defendants, Judge Schweinhaut refused to lighten the sentences. The judge set the terms more than two years ago and the Supreme Court twice refused to review the trial.

Start Releasing Of Draftees

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(P)—The Army starts releasing its draftees today.

It announced yesterday that 30,000 men drafted or recruited under the 1948 selective service act will be given a choice of four alternatives:

1. Take a release after 12 months' duty and enter the reserve.
2. Complete 21 months of active service before entering the reserve.
3. Stay in service for a total of 33 months, after which they need not join the reserve.
4. Accept a discharge "for the convenience of the government," and then enlist for a full term in the regular army.

The program affects 24,000 draftees and another 6,000 men who enlisted for 21 months under the 1948 act.

First to be released will be those who were drafted or volunteered in November, 1948. Men called in December, 1948 and January, 1949 will be released upon completion of 12 months service.

Some 400 ROTC graduate officers called to active duty for 21 months under the same act also will be released upon 12 month active service.

Murder Case to Jury Today

OSCEOLA, Mo., Dec. 1.—(P)—Only final arguments and instructions to the jury remained today in the trial of Edwin Lund, charged with murder in the slaying of Noah Dixon.

Lund, on the stand yesterday, said he had signed a statement admitting the slaying, but declared he had been told that he would go to the death chamber if he didn't.

Captain Lester Scott, chief of detectives at Springfield, said however that Lund's statement was voluntary and that the prisoner had not been threatened.

Dixon was shot and killed near Collins, Mo., last August 7.

Lund testified that he was squirrel hunting that day when he met Dixon. He said that as they walked along a wooded trail he heard a shot and saw Dixon fall. Lund said he was carrying his .22 calibre rifle cocked, but did not remember pulling the trigger. Lund was arrested three days later at Springfield.

The defendant related he picked up Dixon's billfold, but said he later gave it to a cab driver in Springfield. The driver, Ray Butcher, related that Lund threw the billfold from a cab near Mt. Vernon.

Larry Jones Guest Speaker At Lions Club

Recognition Given Four Who Have Been Members Ten Years

Larry Jones, secretary of the Missouri State Osteopathic Ass'n., was the guest speaker of the Lions club at their regular quarterly night meeting held Wednesday evening at the Pioneer room or Dan's restaurant. Mr. Jones developed the theme that in this season of the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays that we should not become so interested in material success, but what we should remember the underlying sacrifices and concepts of our pioneer forefathers which made the present achievements of this nation possible.

"When the Pilgrim fathers landed on the eastern coasts of our nation they were thankful for the homes that they, as free people, were able to carve out of the wilderness," Mr. Jones said, "—homes that anyone in this room would be ashamed to have for a coal bin." Mr. Jones continued, "These sturdy forefathers came to this country to enjoy freedom from oppression, and to build their lives on the principles of a philosophy expounded by a man who lived two thousand years ago in a country, smaller than Missouri, and which we in this great central west would consider unfit for cultivation. In one of their significant documents, the Declaration of Independence, they wrote 'we believe—in the inherent right of men—to the pursuit of happiness'—the 'pursuit,'" he continued, "because they did not paternalistically guarantee happiness to any man, but were anxious to guarantee to all regardless of race, creed, or politics the right to that pursuit."

Flop For a Strike by Communists

Is Ignored by Thousands in Italy And is Denounced

By Philip Clarke

ROME, Dec. 1.—(P)—Italy's Communists suffered a humiliating defeat today in their attempt to paralyze this nation in a 24-hour general strike.

Seven hours after the strike started at 6 a. m. (11 p. m. Wednesday CST) its effects were scarcely felt. It was much more of a failure than a similar one-day general strike in France last Friday, and the second flop in a month for the Communist-led general confederation of labor (CGIL).

Government spokesmen said the walkout was a failure except in Italy's big northern factories, the chief centers of Italian Communist strength.

Even the Communist laid little claim to success. A spokesman for the CGIL admitted that transportation was nearly normal in most cities.

Yesterday the CGIL had appealed to all workers in Italy to join the strike in protest against the death of two farmhands in a clash with police in the south.

Called Only "Protest" Today, however, a CGIL spokesman said: "The strike didn't intend to paralyze the nation. It was only a limited protest."

The government had denounced the strike call as a "purely political" demonstration staged by the Communists.

The last Communist attempt on the labor front—only a month ago—also was a flop. The CGIL had called a shorter, eight-hour nationwide walkout in protest against the slaying of three peasants in clashes with police during the peasant invasion of private lands in the south.

Observers here said the Communist weakness here could be traced to growing strength of the government-backed anti-Communist labor unions, now claiming some 2,500,000 members. The CGIL once claimed 6,000,000 members, but the membership now is estimated at a million less.

Thousands of non-strikers ignored the order by the Communist-led general confederation of labor (CGIL) and went to work in makeshift transportation. Many stores were open in Rome.

Only half of this city's transportation system was stalled by the strike. The strike, which began at 6 a. m. (Rome time), was scheduled to end at 6 a. m. Friday.

Rome radio said anti-Communist workers were manning special buses and about a third of the main streetcar lines.

Most Italians shrugged their shoulders and grumbled about the inconvenience caused by what non-Communist observers called a "purely political" demonstration.

Sidewalks in Rome were crowded with people walking to work. Factories in Bologna, in Italy's strongly Communist industrial north, were closed, however, as were printing plants and the city's transportation system.

But Bologna's shops and offices were open and newspapers were being sold.

Swamp Soviet Opposition

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(P)—The United Nations assembly swamped Soviet opposition today and adopted a 12-point western power declaration laying down essentials for world peace.

The vote followed a shouted Russian denial that the Soviet union is interfering with the affairs of Yugoslavia.

One point in the assembly declaration calls on all nations to refrain from any intervention in the affairs of other countries.

The United States-British proposal was adopted by a vote of 53 to 5. The negative votes were cast by the Soviet bloc. Yugoslavia abstained.

Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky told the assembly Yugoslavia's charges of Soviet interference are "nonsense."

Polio Victim Rescues Child

RADBURN, N. J., Dec. 1.—(P)—Jack Reyle is a polio victim with a paralyzed left arm. He just got out of the hospital.

But that didn't stop him yesterday from rescuing a three-year-old boy who slipped into a sewer and nearly hung himself in the narrow opening.

The youngest, Joseph Quackebush, Jr., was trying to retrieve a toy from the sewer. When he slipped and was caught under the chin he quickly became unconscious.

Some children ran to the 24-year-old Reyle's home nearby. Just released from Jersey City Medical Center that day, Reyle sent the children for police and then pulled the boy from the sewer with his left arm.

Ready Denial Santa Claus 'Shot'

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—(P)—In Pittsburgh a news broadcaster began his program "John L. Lewis just shot Santa Claus"—and then went on telling of the coal strike.

In Chicago a dozen children promptly grabbed their telephones last night and called the Sun-Times. "Say it isn't so!" they begged. The newspaper obliged.

Back in Pittsburgh the broadcaster, NBC commentator Paul Long, said "You don't mean that really happened? I can hardly believe it."

Chiang Back To Leadership

Fall of Chungking To Communists On Wednesday

By the Associated Press

The weary and confused Nationalist government of China set up shop in Chengtu today. Observers predicted the newest refugee capital would last only a month.

Chiang Kai-shek has taken over leadership of the Nationalist forces again. Chungking, the previous capital, fell to the advancing Reds yesterday.

Chengtu is only 170 miles from Chungking. The Communist armies previously drove the Nationalists from capitals set up at Nanking and Canton.

At Sarajevo, Yugoslavia began its trial of 10 Russians accused of spying for the Soviet Union. The court announced 12 originally scheduled to appear two were absent. The statement said one of the accused hanged himself after denying his guilt. Another defendant was too ill to appear.

The trial is Premier Marshal Tito's latest thorn prick in the side of Russia and his first ally since the Russian-led Cominform called upon Communists to step up the squeeze-play on Yugoslavia.

In the United Nations assembly Russia is expected to roar back at Yugoslavia, which has charged the Soviet Union with leading a campaign to oust Tito. The Yugoslav spokesman predicted in a U. N. speech yesterday that the Cominform's plot against the Yugoslav regime would fail. Other nations accused Russia of talking peace with words while simultaneously taking warlike action in the Balkans.

In Paris, North Atlantic treaty defense chiefs are deciding whether the United States or Britain will call the signals should war come again to western Europe. Britain is the top nation in the Brussels alliance with France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. The Brussels alliance nations have signed the Atlantic pact along with seven other nations. The United States wants the future Atlantic high command to be paramount on strategy decisions as well as in name. Because of America's great contributions in money and material, the American point of view was assured wide support.

U. S. officials in Germany showed increasing concern today over the question of rising German nationalism. Some German politicians, since the western allies slackened occupation controls, have been beating the drums for what U. S. high commissioner John J. McCloy called "nationalism in its sinister sense"—meaning Nazism.

In Washington, the state department bulletin said Russia may make a German peace treaty and withdraw its occupation troops from east Germany sometime this year.

Actress to a Big Cheesecake Figure

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 1.—(P)—Betty Grable is up to her first million and a half—in cheesecake. Her studio yesterday mailed out the 1,500,000th copy of the famous Grable-in-a-bathing suit photograph that consigned GI's all over the world.

The leggy actress autographed the print which went to a fan, Alan Faith, in Wenatchee, Wash.

Appreciation is Expressed to One of Recent Blood Donors

A blood donor, a prominent Sedalia business man, received a letter of appreciation recently from the family of one of the victims in a recent wreck.

The letter read in part: "We have great respect for the heroism of one who answers an emergency call for a blood donation. Now that the excitement of this terrible automobile accident is lessening and we are somewhat calmed down, there are some of us who will go to the hospital and do what we can to replace your generous gift, and also that of other blood donors, hoping that when other transu-

Kiwanis Talk By Col. Casteel

The Sedalia Kiwanis club heard an interesting and informative talk by Col. B. Marvin Casteel, director of the Missouri Department of Corrections, at their meeting in Bothwell hotel Thursday night.

The speaker was introduced by Pinkney Miller, program chairman.

Col. Casteel, combat officer in two world wars, past commander of the American Legion, former superintendent of the State Highway Patrol and now head of the department of corrections, explained the operations of the penal institutions, which with the division of training schools and the division of probation and parole come under the department of corrections.

The speaker explained the huge farming and industrial operations involved in conducting the penal institutions, the administrative setup; innovation of voluntary schools of instruction for convicts; methods of handling prisoners to the purpose of returning them to society as better citizens.

T. H. Yount announced that Sedalia Kiwanians are invited to a Jefferson City club meeting December 13 when International President Hugh Jackson will be the speaker.

Announcement was made that Kiwanian Charles Van Dyne was improving after an operation in St. Mary's hospital, Kansas City.

W. M. Johns was given a welcome greeting after being absent for three meetings because of illness.

Blast at House Being Built

At One Under Construction For Dr. K. B. Gonser

An unusual noise, said by some to sound like a roaring one, while others described it as a blasting sound, was attributed to an explosion in the basement of a new five room house being constructed by Dr. Karl B. Gonser on the south side of West Broadway near Warren avenue. It was loud enough to awaken many Sedalians at 12:45 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Cause of the blast remained a mystery until later in the morning. A carpenter reporting for work noticed a small section of the basement floor at the Gonser home torn out. The upper sub-flooring was splintered, a basement screen blown out and a handle broken from a shovel, and other indications that an explosion had taken place.

The carpenter reported his discovery to Dr. Gonser who notified the police at 9:45 o'clock this morning. Police officers made an investigation but nothing could be found that might reveal the type of explosives used.

For the past year Dr. Gonser with the help of carpenters has been building the house on Broadway.

Whatever the cause of the blast it was sufficient to awaken many Sedalia in all parts of town. Because of previous bomb explosions, and an M. K. T. locomotive boiler blowing up, quite a few citizens

Lack of Home Rule is Called Stumbling Block for US Cities

By Mayor deLesseps S. Morrison
President American Municipal Association
(Written for NEA Service)

NEW ORLEANS, La. — A pessimist could look at America's cities and towns today and report: Expenses high. Income inadequate. Debt increasing. Problems mushrooming. Authority often hamstrung. The typical mayor's face usually has a worried look.

Last year three cities the size of New Orleans could have been formed from the nationwide increase in urban population.

These new city dwellers need police and fire protection, streets, schools and a thousand other municipal services.

The key problem of American cities is to make up for construction deferred by the depression and World War II, and then to provide entirely new facilities and services for a war-swollen population.

This is the dark side of the picture. Yet there are no lasting grounds for pessimism. City governments are moving ahead as never before. Item: The 397 largest communities in 1948 invested 50 per cent more in capital improvements than in 1947.

This means steamrollers in the streets, the banging of pile drivers and the hammering of carpenters in the building of new highways, schools, youth centers and the like.

Item: More than half a dozen entrenched political machines have toppled in major cities in the post-war period, largely because the independent voter is marching to the polls.

Uppermost in the thinking at the American Municipal Association meeting will be the greatest single stumbling block to municipal progress in the U. S. — lack of home rule.

Most communities are at the whim and mercy of state legislatures, which frequently reduce local revenues while increasing local expenses, frustrate local attempts to meet pressing problems and meddle in every conceivable way in local affairs.

A tide of home rule sentiment is sweeping the nation. Louisiana, Maryland, Tennessee, Iowa and Arkansas are but a few of the recent battlegrounds. The next few years will see an effort in most states to make local self-government a part of the constitution.

There will also be an all-out attack on the slum problem, principally through the recently enacted housing bill which the American Municipal Association has helped pass.

This program, far superior to previous ones, will provide a real opportunity to remove the blight that lies near the heart of most cities, to give these areas a new lease on life and to reduce the taxpayers' bill for crime, disease and social unrest.

We are also seeking a "little Hoover Commission" to make sense out of the overlapping duplication and competition between governments in finding revenues and performing services.

The cities are squeezed in a financial vise between federal and state taxes. At a time when cities need more money to serve more needs, their chances of getting it are not good.

One particularly sore spot is the division of revenues from street and highway user taxes. In Denver, for example, of every dollar paid to the state in taxes of this type, only eight cents was finally spent in Denver. Numerous similar examples are on record.

Then there is the federal and municipal problem created by the fact that Uncle Sam now owns one-fifth of the nation's land, tax exempt. Yet cities derive most of their income from taxes on property.

This federal tax exemption costs San Francisco more than $5,000,000 a year. St. Louis loses $600,000, Dallas $307,000 and so on. Our Association will consequently support to the fullest plans now being developed by the federal government for payments to cities of sums in lieu of taxes on federal property.

The Cleveland convention will be unique for the adoption of the first national municipal policy with regard to local action in event of a recession.

Some people say the surest way to bring on a decline is to talk about it. Yet, facing the tremendous responsibility of meagre relief demands, few officials wish to blind themselves deliberately to the dangers.

Besides the new spirit of resolution and leadership within the city halls of the nation demands that we see ahead and plan ahead and be prepared to act in any emergency — be it economic or atomic.

There is a stirring within the people across the land that augurs well for the future of municipal government.

There is every reason to believe that at long last, that wonderful but unpredictable fellow, the common man, is taking a vigorous interest in his city government.

The results are bound to be good.

There are so many reasons for having a Christmas party. You can make it a Christmas Eve party when festivities begin late, when carols are in order and bacon and eggs are served just before the guests go home. Or you can plan a mid-day Christmas party or a party on Christmas night. It is up to you.

Your invitation to the party can be cut out of red mat paper that measures 12 by 3 1/2 inches. It is folded in half to form a booklet and the cover is pasted with a few attractive Christmas seals. Inside paste scattered snowflakes cut out from lace paper doilies. Leave room to write your invitation and use white or green ink if you want it to be effective.

If your guests are to sit at the table and be served a repast, you can make delightful place mats out of dark green mat paper. Make a pattern of a large, full Christmas tree roughly 16 inches

Say Thomas Should Resign

Could be Expelled By House if He Does Not

By Douglas B. Cornish
WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Fellow House members said today Rep. J. Parnell Thomas (R-N. J.) ought to resign now that he is going to be sentenced on charges of cheating the government on his payroll.

And people on Capitol Hill who know Thomas well expect him to do just that.

Thomas faces up to 32 years in jail and a $40,000 fine. This is the result of his backing down completely and suddenly in his fight against charges he operated a salary kickback scheme with three women he put on the congressional pay list.

He changed his plea yesterday from "not guilty" to what the lawyers call "nolo contendere." That meant he wouldn't contest the government's charges.

Federal Judge Alexander Holtz-off ordered him to come back a week from tomorrow for the sentence.

That wound up a swift, two and a half day trial.

In it, the government contended thousands of dollars were paid out for work that never was done. This money, it claimed, turned up in Thomas' bank account. Furthermore, the government produced testimony that Thomas kept relatives on the payroll who did no work—one of them a 71-year-old bedridden woman.

Thomas doesn't have to resign, even if he goes to jail. If he doesn't, the House could expell him. Thomas still has a year to go on his seventh term.

The new House members now in town agree that Thomas ought to hand in his resignation.

Thomas himself was saying nothing, except that he was going home to Allendale, N. J., and come back next week. The attorney general of New Jersey ruled yesterday that if a vacancy occurs in the post now held by Thomas, it is the duty of Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll to call a special election to fill it.

Thomas' lawyer said the decision to place the congressman at the mercy of the court was made out of consideration for Thomas' health and his family. Thomas has been ill with a stomach ailment that resulted in two long postponements of his trial.

Is Found Dead in Tourist Cabin

Ernest Williams, 47 years old, apparently without a permanent address, was found dead about 6 o'clock Tuesday evening in a tourist cabin at Park Way Station, one-fourth mile west of Knob Noster on highway 50.

A jury at a coroner's inquest conducted that night at Saults-Baker funeral home in Knob Noster by Dr. Kelly Rawlins of Holden, county coroner, returned a verdict that Williams' death was from natural causes.

How long Williams had been dead was not determined. According to information given to Sheriff Alex Nichols and testimony at the inquest, he had rented the cabin about midnight Saturday, but had not gone into it until about 1 o'clock Sunday morning.

John Hilderbrand, who operates Park Way Station, said he called to Williams about one o'clock Monday afternoon and asked if everything was all right. He said that Williams answered that it was.

Nothing else was known of the man in the cabin until about 6 o'clock Tuesday night. Then Everett Adams, who owns the property and leases it to Hilderbrand, feared something was wrong and looked through a window. He saw Williams lying on the bed, apparently unconscious and called Marshal William Busby. Adams occupies a cabin near the one rented by Williams.

The door of Williams' cabin was locked, but Marshal Busby succeeded in getting it open. A gas heater was burning in the cabin when the officer entered.

Williams, a carpenter, formerly worked at LaMonte. Since that time he had worked at Frisbie, Mo., and in Oakland, Calif.

A brother of Williams, Harold Williams, lives in Higginsville and another brother lives in Louisburg, Kas. Williams' mother lives in Warsaw.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at Altamont, Mo.

the Community Chest. "In the days of my youth," he said "it was the duty of the family to lend succor to a hard up member of the family, or if there was no family, of the neighbors—today the philosophy is to leave it to some bureau of the government. In the days of rising costs to all of the member organizations of a Chest we keep on making the same concernment will take over our problem."

Mr. Jones continued, "we are doing the rising generation a grave injustice by not teaching them a sense of responsibility and of assigning them definite tasks in the home and in the family unit. By trying to make life easier for our children, we are actually placing obstacles in the development of their ability to face the problems of the world and assume positions of leadership, with the same training as the leaders of this generation have had."

Clubs Important to Community

"The service clubs, Rotary, Kiwanis, etc.," he said, "serve an important need in the community, and should do all in their power to—as thinking leaders and men of responsibility—combat the wave of paternalism which is taking too serious hold on the minds of our people." "Your work nationally, and locally with youth," he told the assembled members, "is well known and is a clear demonstration of what I mean."

"In conclusion," Mr. Jones stated, "we need more of the faith that inspired the founder of Christianity that though the road of his philosophy was hard it was the road that lead to the philosophy of the dignity of the individual. The philosophy on which all of the things which we will this holiday season is founded."

Col. David E. Harrison, superintendent of the patrol, announced the appointment today. He said Pate was an original member of the patrol, having been appointed in 1931 when the state police force was established.

Pate has been acting head of Troop B for the past two months, since Maj. G. R. Minor was promoted from captain and brought to general headquarters here as Harrison's administrative assistant.

These other promotions, also effective Jan. 1, were announced: Sgt. C. M. Parker of Brookfield to lieutenant and assistant to Captain Pate in Macon. Parker also an original officer of the patrol.

Trooper Walter Snyder, Jr., of Hannibal to sergeant, transferred to Brookfield to replace Parker. Sgt. C. W. Huston of Rolla to lieutenant and to become assistant to Capt. Thomas E. Whitcotton in the new Troop I area at Rolla.

Sgt. R. I. Cox, supply chief at headquarters here, promoted to lieutenant. Also an original member of the patrol, Cox will remain at general headquarters.

Trooper T. W. Pasley of Camdenton, promoted to sergeant and possibly to be transferred to Rolla.

Trooper J. D. Chorn of Troop C, Kirkwood, promoted to sergeant and transferred to Cuba, Mo., in the new Rolla Troop area.

Three-Day Week to Miners

negotiated the three day week operating limitation becomes non-effective.

"3—The president of the international union and his official associates are hereby instructed to administer effectively this prohibition we did ten years ago, when the dollar bought three times as much, and think if the amount raised is not enough that some new-founded bureau of gov-ernment and are given discretionary authority to meet any requirement of principal or detail necessitated in the execution thereof."

Lewis called in reporters to the policy committee meeting and had copies of the resolution distributed. He said:

"The resolution speaks for itself and there will be no amplification."

Lewis first mentioned the possibility of invoking a three-day work week at the UMW convention a year ago. He said then that employment in the industry should be stabilized "and if there is three days work, we'll all work three days."

"If we are going to starve, we'll all starve together," he told 3,000 delegates to that convention in Cincinnati.

Extended Old Agreement

Last July 1, Lewis scrapped his "no-contract, no-work" policy by putting the three-day work week into operation and extended the old agreement.

On September 19 the miners walked out saying they were starting a "no-day work week." Lewis authorized anthracite miners, chiefly in eastern Pennsylvania, and soft coal miners west of the Mississippi, to return to work but the 380,000 other soft coal miners stayed on strike until Lewis and his policy committee called a truce November 9.

Lewis' strategy is in the form of a compromise because it keeps the coal miners at work before Christmas, reducing the threat of a revolt among the coal diggers who have been reported in several states to be grumbling about meager earnings this year.

Lewis also staved off government intervention, which he has professed to dislike, because as long as the mines can produce coal for three days each week the chance of creating an emergency is remote.

At Key West, Fla., earlier, the White House press secretary Charles Ross made it clear that the President was not viewing the situation as an emergency at least today or tomorrow.

With the miners going back to work on Monday, Mr. Truman will not have to invoke the Taft-Hartley act which he has pledged to repeal to use.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 1.—(AP)—A spokesman for coal operators said today that John L. Lewis' order for a three-day work week "is inhuman and it is wrong."

The statement was made by George H. Love, who represents the operators negotiating committee of the national bituminous wage conference.

Love issued a prepared statement which said:

"Again our employees are being deprived of the right to earn a decent living by the arrogant manipulation in power of John L. Lewis."

"These men already have lost almost 80 days work this year and $1,200 in earnings."

"The present daily wage in coal is the highest paid by any major industry in the world and would permit our employees to maintain a decent standard of living, but one man dictates exactly how many days they may work regardless of how much work is available."

"This is inhuman and it is wrong."

Slayer Awaits His Execution

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 1.—(AP)—A chunky Negro bachelor from Kansas City sat quietly in his death row cell today, waiting resignedly to pay the full penalty for killing four Kansas City policemen.

Thirty-five-year old George U. Bell spent most of his last hours today talking with the Rev. Father Stevens, Catholic chaplain at the Missouri prison, Warden Ralph E. Eidson reported.

Eidson said the doomed man indicated he wanted to be converted to the Catholic faith before his execution just after midnight tonight.

Bell will be the 18th Negro to die in the lethal gas chamber in the 11 years of its operation at the Missouri prison. Seven white men and no women have been executed there.

The steer, Judge Roy Bean, a champion junior yearling Hereford, was shown by the Pecos county, Texas, 4-H club. It weighed 1200 pounds for sale.

The purchaser was Dearborn Motors Corporation of Detroit, the national marketing organization for Ford Tractors and Dearborn farm equipment.

The previous record was $10.75 a pound paid last year.

Negro Accused Of Burglary

Prosecuting Attorney William F. Brown filed information with the Magistrate court, Wednesday, charging Newton E. Foster, Negro of Sedalia with burglary.

Foster was arrested by police in connection with the robbery of $200 at Dillon's Bakery Sunday. Information charged him with breaking away a glass panel at the rear of the bakery, and entering through the rear door and stealing the money which was in a desk drawer, it being the personal property of R. M. Dillon, Jr., proprietor of the bakery.

The defendant is at the county jail, pending a preliminary hearing in Magistrate court.

Might Get a Loot Windfall

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Police don't know what to do with Charles H. Sweigart, 24, who they said has admitted stealing $18,950 from a Los Angeles produce merchant.

Sweigart was arrested Nov. 12 with $17,199 in cash in his possession. He told officers the money was loot taken from a secret cache in the home of George Mulhardt.

The prisoner, a Hollywood ice skating rink attendant, said he learned of the cache from the merchant's wife, a former ice skating star.

Yesterday police received a diagram stating a Los Angeles detective was on his way to St. Louis to claim Sweigart. But a few minutes later a telegram arrived from the Los Angeles district attorney's office saying the official refused to extradite Sweigart because he was unable to "get co-operation from Mulhardt."

Police said that if Los Angeles officials refuse to prosecute, they will release Sweigart and hand the recovered loot over to the police pension fund here.

Sixty-three Births at Bothwell Hospital

November seems to be baby month. According to a report from Bothwell hospital there were 63 babies born there this past month, 31 boys and 32 girls. That is the largest number born in any one month so far this year.

In 1948 November's baby record was the largest during the entire year with 61 babies, 34 boys and 27 girls.

He would not amplify this remark.

Wall Street Bust Inspired Reds' Big Plunge in United States Politics

By Peter Edson
NEA Washington Correspondent

There had been little overt Communist political effort, in all truth, until an October day 20 years ago. Variety's inspired headlining called it: "Wall Street Lays an Egg."

Moscow gleefully concluded that the end of capitalism (for which read the "day of revolution") was at hand. The party in America had been purged and its leaders, headed by William Z. Foster, made utterly obedient to the Kremlin's line. A new policy was ordered. It called for promotion of strikes in coal, steel and other basic industries. But it went far beyond the same tactics as applied a decade earlier.

Earl Browder
Emerges with a pardon.

The unemployed (5,000,000 in 1930, more than 12,000,000 in 1935) were to be organized into a thing called the Workers' Alliance. This in turn, after a due time of agitation by marches on capitals and the like, was to become the fine tempered instrument wherewith Communism thought it would win control at the polls.

There has ensued until this day, a strange razzle-dazzle of political turn-coatism. The party has never remained consistent, cutting its cloth by the over-changing pattern of its own opportunism as measured against the new complexities of the world at large.

Between 1929 and 1935, the party fought earnestly against Franklin D. Roosevelt, first as governor of New York and then as New Deal President. In this interim Foster lost control again and Earl Russell Browder, a Kansan and protégé of his predecessor, became secretary-general, a post he was to hold for 15 years. The trend of antagonism endured until 1933, when Hitler won the chancellorship of Germany and began forthwith to liquidate the Communists.

Stalin needed friends. He needed such support as U. S. diplomatic and commercial recognition. So the party line changed once more; in 1935, at the Seventh World Communist Congress in Moscow, the order went forth: Play along with Roosevelt in '36.

By the time election day had dawned, the Communists in the U. S. were quasi-Democrats, by fiat. They had a token ticket in the national race (Browder-Ford) but it meant nothing. Those of the card-holding faithful who went to the polls cast their votes for a second New Deal term — and what that meant in the way of secret agreements with the Democrats has remained one of America's great political mysteries.

The next three years were a period of appeasement. The damage done in that time is literally incalculable. Misguided intellectuals turned a pretty shade of pink. Reds crawled out of the governmental woodwork to take up many important posts and to entrench themselves so well that it took years to exterminate them.

In early August, 1939, the party was respectable, with an estimated membership of 1,000,000. In that month came the first of two historic double-crosses — the Stalin-Hitler pact. For a time the U. S. Communist leaders did not know what to make of it, talking in larger circles than ever. When September came, and with it the march of Germany's legions into Poland, the Communist-New Deal honeymoon was over. The U. S. was once again a capitalist ogre and Roosevelt its prophet.

The new Communist manifesto decreed that the U. S. must be kept out of the war at any cost. The American Peace Mobilization (grandson of the Anti-Imperialist League, son of the League Against War and Fascism) went into the rally-and-picket business again, uttering anguished patriotic cries which, when properly translated, remained the staunch old line.

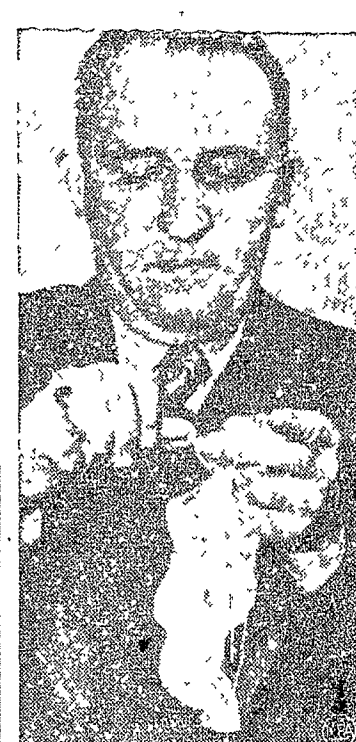

The U. S. acted, with formation of the Dies Committee (which will be examined in detail in a subsequent article). Browder was sentenced to four years for passport fraud, on the basis of admissions before the committee. Robert Minor, son of a Texas judge and a veteran of the Spanish revolution — where many a world Communist learned the facts of true war — became the party's new head.

June 22, 1941, saw the second great double-cross. Hitler attacked Russia. The U. S. Communist party rushed to the cupboard, donned a new coat and took the "not" out of their slogan. "The Yanks Are Not Coming." The U. S. could not be forced to war fast enough to suit the Communists. Meantime it must not stint in its shipments of aid to England and France.

Pearl Harbor was greeted with hosannas. President Roosevelt pardoned Browder, who resumed the secretary-generalship in 1942. The party "disbanded" itself in June, 1944, so super-patriotic it just. The new name was the Communist Political Association; the dedication "American Communism should renounce the aims of partisan advancement and the party form of organization."

Less than three months after V-E day the party was reborn on the basis of "partisan advancement and the party form of organization." Foster was restored to command, with such now familiar names as Eugene Dennis, John B. Williamson and Robert G. Thompson listed among his secretariat.

The convention of 1945 called for the introduction of socialism

"NICE WORK, OL' SOCK" — Joseph Dolina of Dunnellen, N. J., crochets as usual after winning first prize in the "Men Only" division of a national crocheting contest in Chicago. by the free choice of the American people — fine words meaning the same thing as those in the original constitution of 1919.

Once again the shifting tides of fortune, which had made the party now bold, now furtive, had mutilated in its favor. For the four years of the war there was virtually no resistance to Communism by the government. The public had been lulled. Stalin was a friend and ally. All would not be well.

But (and here we go again), Henry A. Wallace had emerged as a new liberal, a candidate for President on the Progressive ticket. The Communies used him and his party as dupes. The U. S. Red press here and Radio Moscow endorsed him. Here was a new chance at "socialism by the free choice of the people," with the extreme left in the Wallace movement hoping for between 2,000,000 and 5,000,000 votes.

What they got were 1,130,000 votes in 45 states, as against J. Strom Thurmond's 1,168,000 as a States Righter in 19 states. The Progressives got 2 1/2 per cent of the 48,489,000 total, but a large proportion of that was not from Communists.

The strategy for 1950 and 1952 cannot be conjectured, much less predicted. But there are two sure things. One is that the Communists will swing in any direction indicating gain, twisting whatever words are necessary to help. The other is that the American public, more fully aware than ever before of the peril involved, will gauge the Communists more realistically, than, on occasion, it has done in the past.

Next: Labor — Communism's greatest battleground.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round Oscar Chapman's Reward Is Long Overdue

By Drew Pearson

(ED. NOTE—The brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, today goes to Oscar Chapman as he becomes Secretary of the Interior.)

WASHINGTON—A young Navy veteran stood outside the juvenile delinquency court in Denver, Colo., back in 1922. He had tried eleven times to get an appointment with Judge Ben Lindsay, the famed juvenile expert, and each time Lindsay's secretary had said no.

But the young veteran persevered. Finally he caught Lindsay as he went out to lunch, and shortly thereafter became his assistant probation officer.

The young veteran was Oscar Chapman. And if he had not persevered both in Denver and Washington, he would not be taking the oath as Secretary of the Interior today.

Chapman has been a member of the "little cabinet" longer than anyone else in Washington. He became assistant Secretary of the Interior in the first months of Franklin Roosevelt's bright and shiny New Deal back in 1933, and he has patiently stuck it out for 16 years since. Cabinet shifts have been made, new appointments have been sent to the Senate, but Chapman has quietly kept on working.

And just as he finally saw Judge Lindsay after having been rebuffed eleven times, Oscar has now come into the reward long overdue. When he takes office today, he will probably be the best qualified and experienced new Secretary of the Interior in history.

Bull Moose Bosses

It may show a trend of the times that the three men Oscar Chapman worked for most of his life have all been Teddy Roosevelt Bull-Moosers. And of recent years these progressive Republicans have been among the pillars of the Democratic party.

The three men are Judge Lindsay, Sen. Ed Costigan of Colorado and Harold Ickes. The latter two were delegates at the Republican convention which nominated Taft in 1912. They walked out in protest and later drafted Teddy Roosevelt.

It was through Senator Ed Costigan that Chapman happened to meet FDR and enter the New Deal. Chapman had managed Costigan's campaign for the Senate in Colorado in 1930, and despite the fact that Costigan was a Bull-Mooser, Chapman elected him on the Democratic ticket. Later Costigan visited Franklin Roosevelt, then governor of New York, and took Chapman along. They talked about conservation.

"We must keep young men like this in government," Roosevelt said, referring to Costigan's assistant and also having in mind the probability that he, Roosevelt, would be the next president of the United States.

After his election, FDR did not forget. He notified Costigan that "a man named Ickes from Chicago" would be the new Secretary of the Interior; and that marked the beginning of the hookup between Ickes and Chapman—a hookup that has continued to this day.

Liberal Battler

Old-time observers say there are two kinds of politicians in Washington—those who watch to see which way the wind is blowing, and those who stand up and buck the wind no matter how hard it's blowing.

Chapman is in the latter class. And his battles—wind or no wind—have always been on the liberal side. However, he has worked so quietly and kept himself so much in the background that few have given him credit for the many things he has accomplished. Chapman, for instance, has been pushing the production of synthetic oil and gasoline, working behind-the-scenes with Sen. Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming.

It was Chapman who months before the oil crisis in the winter of 1947-48 warned the industry that they faced a shortage. Later, the big oil companies were actually running advertisements urging consumers to use less oil.

Early in the New Deal it was also Chapman who led the fight against child labor in the beet-sugar fields. As a boy he had worked in the tobacco fields of Virginia, and knew child labor first hand.

Chapman was also sent to the far west as trouble-shooter when the grazing act was first passed in 1934. Ickes and Roosevelt had persuaded Congress to regulate the public domain in the Rocky mountain states, where big sheep and cattle men had fenced in large areas of government land.

Irate groups of cattlemen greeted Chapman wherever he went; but after listening to his persuasion for half an hour, one cattleman got up and said:

"We're all used to having the government in Washington crucify us; so this is nothing new. But it is new to have someone come out and consult us about the way we want to be crucified. This man Chapman is at least good enough to come and listen to our side. So I'm for him."

Smart Politician

When Harry Truman became president of the United States he scarcely knew the young man who today enters his cabinet. Probably the first time he came to appreciate him was when Harold Ickes resigned and Chapman accomplished the miracle of keeping all Interior Department executives from resigning in protest with their old chief.

Later, Truman came to know Chapman even better when his whistle-stop campaign in the summer of 1948 got off to a miserable start. At Omaha, Truman spoke to a half-empty house. Crowds along the way greeted him with less than lukewarm enthusiasm.

Suddenly Oscar Chapman was rushed to his home town, Denver, then on through the far west ahead of the president's train.

Chapman knew the west. Thanks to his knowledge and his political sagacity, the presidential trip which started like a funeral dirge, ended like a bandwagon. Playing his part backstage, as usual, Oscar had quite a bit to do with the political miracle that confounded the pollsters in November 1948.

John Q. Public Remains Deaf To Warnings Against Socialism

By Bruce Blossat

There is no evidence the American people want socialism. Nor is there any convincing sign they believe the country is heading that way.

Indications are numerous that they do not take seriously repeated warnings from many quarters that the all-powerful state is just around the corner. The recent New York senatorial election, in which big government was the issue, affords the latest example.

That election, in the view of seasoned observers, suggested strongly that there is little political capital in these warnings of a rush toward socialism. Earlier this year some conservatives in and out of the Republican party seized upon the word "statism" to express what they deemed to be the philosophy of big government. But now the Gallup poll reports that more than two-thirds of the people have no idea what the term is supposed to mean.

The voting majority may or may not be right in choosing to ignore the alarms. After all, no one really knows where the nation is heading. And that is not a condition peculiar to our time, although admittedly trends may be more difficult to measure accurately in this confusing age.

But suppose there is real danger to freedom in the present course of government. How could the peril be made understandable to the people?

They have listened so long and so often to cries of doom that their resistance is high. Terms like "socialism," "regimentation," "dictatorship," "big government" and "statism" fall on deaf ears.

The latest to sound warning is James F. Byrnes, former secretary of state. For the second time this year he has spoken out in opposition to what he considers the ruinous trend of present-day government. Yet there is slim likelihood Byrnes will win many converts. Those who will hail his speech are those who agreed with him before he made it.

Byrnes said some pretty strong things. Examples: "Too many people are thinking of security instead of opportunity. They seem more afraid of life than of death. . . . Big government is more dangerous than big business. Little government can regulate big business. . . . but it is difficult to regulate big government."

Yet even at best his words have a too familiar ring. They carry an echo of speeches long dead and forgotten.

Imagine yourself possessed of the power to foresee the future and predict perhaps that we are indeed moving toward socialism. What could you say to the American people that might turn them into another path?

The evidence up to now leads one to believe that no words will do the trick. If the United States is really becoming socialistic, it begins to appear that the people are unlikely to take note of the fact or do anything about it until they have suffered some specific loss of freedom. Some particular freedom, of course, that they cherish highly.

In the pain of that loss, they may realize what is happening in time to choke off the further growth of centralized power. Always assuming, naturally, that they do not want socialism.

Meantime the warnings will go on—with about as much effect as follows from declarations in Moscow that the United States is bent upon war.

• So They Say

Monetary and fiscal tricks have no power of magic, but are a slippery road to misery.—Dr. Edward G. Nourse, recently resigned as Mr. Truman's chief economic adviser.

Divorce and separation are respite for some of the darkest evils in our society.—Princess Elizabeth of England.

When we speak to the world, we speak as a united America.—Sen. Tom Connally (D-Tex.) on bi-partisan foreign policy.

World pressure in these days is far too strong to be harnessed within the confines of any single camp—or insulated from one another by any iron curtain. However, there is still time for a curraiser and new act.—Defense Secretary Louis Johnson.

On the basis of what I think some of us know, this nation couldn't fight its way out of a paper bag if war broke out tomorrow.—Sen. Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.).

The business readjustment after World War II has been gradual and orderly. During the post-war period there has been neither excessive credit expansion nor excessive speculation.—Edward J. Foley, Jr., undersecretary of the treasury.

• Ruth Millett Many Small Acts Mount up In 'Flirtation With Divorce'

A married couple is flirting with divorce when they start making these mistakes:

She refuses to go with him when a job takes him away from her home town.

They both start trying to prove to each other that they are still attractive to the opposite sex.

Instead of settling differences of opinion as they come along and then forgetting them, they keep right on fighting over the same issues.

She can't resist the impulse to threaten to leave him when they get into a bitter argument.

They can't agree on how to bring up the children, and neither is willing to compromise.

They get in a social set where keeping up with the Joneses is the most important thing in life.

They let in-laws interfere in their decisions.

Nagging at Each Other

They start picking on each other in public.

They give up the small courtesies that ease the strain of day-by-day living.

One of them starts telling their troubles to an outsider, not in an effort to get help, but to get sympathy.

They start going out on parties where there is a lot of hard drinking and the usual messiness that results when a group of married couples start trying to recapture their youth.

One of them gets a "I've done my best and now I'm going to stop trying" chip on the shoulder.

They let their home life grow dull and monotonous, because neither one has the spark of ingenuity to try to make it fun.

None of these mistakes inevitably leads to divorce. But all of them flirt with it.

The Doctor Says— Bleeding in the Kidneys Must Be Very Carefully Investigated

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

Too many people neglect serious symptom and too many others worry too much about unimportant ones. Among the serious ones are blood in the urine. Even if blood is present for only a day or two and then clears up, it should not be ignored. This symptom is not caused by a "strain" or a "cold" but some more serious condition is almost always present.

This symptom means that there is bleeding somewhere along the urinary passageways. The blood may come from high up in one or both kidneys. Bleeding from the kidneys can be caused by an injury, a tumor, an inflammation, stones, and from other disorders within these organs. Needless to say, anything which causes enough bleeding in the kidneys to be observed in the urine should be investigated promptly and completely.

Most such conditions can be treated successfully either by medical means or by surgery if they are discovered early enough. The great tragedy, however, is that when they have been allowed to exist for a long time they often reach a stage in which successful treatment is no longer possible.

Troubled Tubes

After leaving the kidneys, the urine passes down tubes known as ureters—one for each kidney. These tubes can be injured, can be pressed upon by tumors, or can be blocked by stones any-one of which cause bleeding into the urine.

Frequently the bleeding is not present all of the time. Blood may appear for a short time in the urine and then disappear, leading to a false sense of relief and security. Specialists in this field maintain that this irregularity of bleeding causes a great deal of difficulty and that many of their problems are made much worse because of neglect. It's just ordinary common sense to take warning from such a symptom as the appearance of blood in the urine.

[Note: Dr. Jordan is unable to answer individual questions from readers. However, each day he will answer one of the most frequently asked questions in his column.]

THE DOCTOR ANSWERS BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

QUESTION: Is taking a basal metabolism test the only way to diagnose a goiter or thyroid trouble? Is this test always accurate?

ANSWER: It is not the only way, but it is a good one in certain cases of thyroid trouble. When properly performed, the test is accurate, but its interpretation, that is, deciding what the results mean, requires judgment and additional information about the patient.

looks like it'd been scratched with a pin or something on the outside. When the clay is what they call "green"—that is, before it's been baked or glazed—the potters sometimes scratch that roughness onto it for a special effect. They use all kinds of queer gadgets to get unusual surfaces. You know those wire flower-holders? Fella I know who has a pottery up in the canyon specializes in little lambs. He makes 'em woolly-looking by punching the green clay with one of those sharp-pronged flower holders. Tricks in all trades, you know."

Reddy scratched the stubble that was beginning to appear on his cheeks. "And Pfeiffer thinks this sgraffito thing could've been the murder weapon? Did he say why he thought Tom might have done it?"

"He babbled a lot of stuff about Tom being jealous of Falter and Neill—he seemed scared to death, wanted me to give him police protection. I pointed out to him that it couldn't have been Tom, since he has a foolproof alibi for the time of both murders. He was in Bob Knox's back room."

REDDY brought out his notebook: "Let's go over all the alibis once more. Suppose we start with Hagar's."

Peters thumbed through his notes. "Not much use checking that, she's the one who just plain hasn't got an alibi. That's why she's in jail, my boy."

"I'm pretty sure you can rule her out, though, Chief."

"Why should I? There's a lot that points right to her. Who was right smack-dab in Falter's house just after the murder—maybe right at the time of the murder? Who's studio was Neil O'Neill's body found in? Who was it gave us a big mumbo-jumbo about being down in Dana Point at the barbecue pits when Mrs. O'Neill was killed? Who had the cameo in her possession and claims she didn't know how it got there? Huh? Nobody but Hagar Blair, a tough old gimlet-eyed doll who looks like she'd commit a murder soon's she'd fry an egg!"

• Q's and A's

Q—Why is the golfer's "caddie" so called?

A—Golf originated in Scotland. Caddie is a Scotch corruption of the French cadet. The original Scotch meaning of caddie was, "an errand boy; one who does odd jobs."

Q—While planet is closest to the sun?

A—Mercury is the closest planet to the sun, and it moves faster than any of the others. In one second it travels 30 miles on the average.

Q—Was the North of South victorious at the Battle of Antietam?

A—The North called off Antietam and claimed a victory; the South called in Sharpsbury and also claimed a victory. The verdict of history is that it was a draw.

Q—How many women are now employed by the federal government?

A—The number of women in federal jobs was reported this year to have reached 480,000.

Q—Did George Washington deliver his farewell Address in person?

A—Washington never read the address in public. This document, full of political wisdom and valuable advice, was dated September 17, 1796. It was first printed in a Philadelphia newspaper.

Never Touch A Fallen Wire!

Storms and accidents sometimes cause wires to break. Danger always lurks in wires lying on the ground, or dangling in the air. NEVER TOUCH THEM.

Insulation on the wire is not a guarantee against you being killed. And electricity within your town is not always the 115 volt kind you use in your home. All towns have in their distribution systems 2400 volts and up to 13,000 volts. Transmission lines, running through some towns, carry as much as 69,000 volts.

You can't know what you may be picking up, so let it alone. Call for one of our trained men to take care of the situation.

One of Early Cities of the State Was Boonville on the River

From Trapping And Hunting it Developed Into Important One

By Mrs. Gene V. Davis
The Boonville Daily News

BOONVILLE, Mo., Nov. 30.—(P)—Each autumn Boonville draws large crowds with its Daniel Boone Days.

There are exhibits, contests, noise and much traffic over the once wooded paths where Boone, the old scout, slipped along with his cumbersome rifle and his powder horn, his keen eye alert for game or unfriendly Indians.

Perhaps the famous hunter would be pleased with the honors indirectly accorded him, but he would have shunned the confusion and the crowds. Boone had come to the wilderness of Missouri for "more elbow room."

He built his home on the banks of the Femme Osage in St. Charles county where he had been granted a tract of 845 acres by the Spanish government, but for 20 years he and his sons roamed the area up and down the Missouri, setting up temporary camps, fishing, hunting, trapping, and working the salt licks that they discovered. While Boone never resided at Boonville it is believed that he camped here often and much association resulted in the town's being given his name.

The Coles Move In

In 1810, about ten years after the scout came to Missouri, two white families crossed from a settlement in Howard county to the bluff side of the river on the south. They were Stephen Cole and his family, and his sister-in-law, Hannah Cole and her nine children. They came in February, crossing in canoes with their horses swimming behind them. They brought no provisions, intending to return to the settlement for supplies, but a storm arose and ice formed in the river preventing their return. For nearly two weeks Hannah and her children lived on acorns, the bark of trees, and one wild turkey. Shortly before, her husband, William T. Cole, had been killed by Indians. But the courage of the pioneers ran in Hannah's blood.

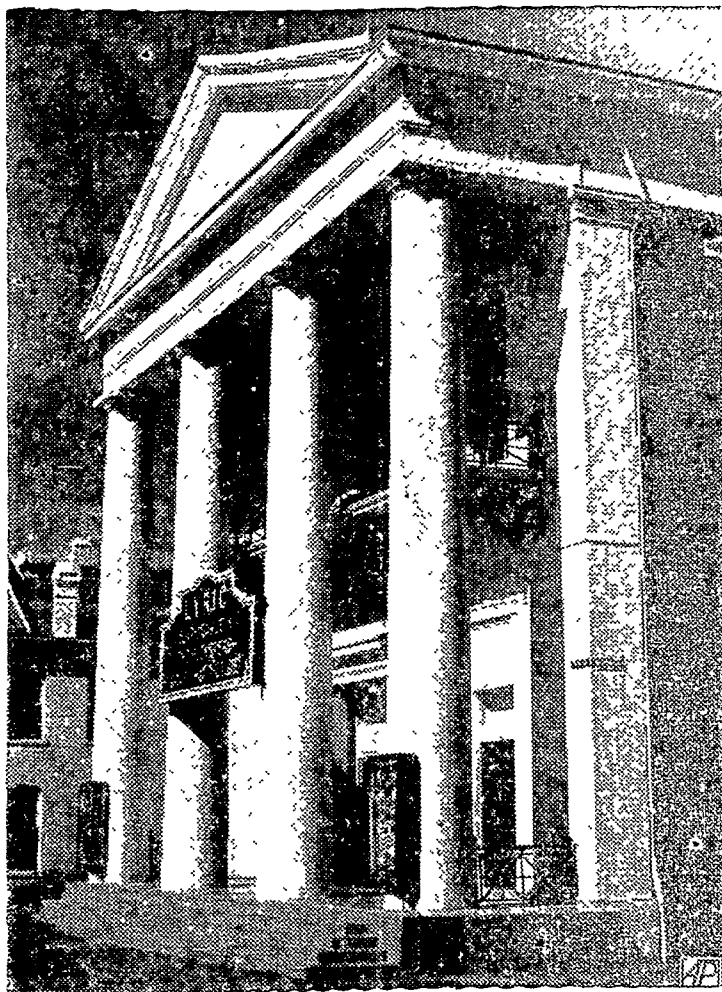

The two Cole families built their cabins on the bluff, and later erected forts there against the Indians. These sites now lie within the limits of Boonville which was formally laid out in 1817.

Hannah Cole owned the first ferry to ply the river here. Her home was the first school house, the first site of a religious gathering, the first county seat of Cooper county, and there the first court was held in 1816 by David Barton who was to become the president of Missouri's first constitutional convention and to serve as the first United States Senator from this state.

Shipping and Farming

Boonville flourished. It was in the center of a country rich in resources, and as hunting and trapping proved less productive the virgin soil provided rich farming land for permanent settlers. The town became a shipping point of importance. Fleets of boats sailed up and down the river, stopping here for supplies and unloading cargoes for overland transportation by wagons to the Ozarks region of the state.

Across the river the Santa Fe Trail had its beginning at the thriving town of Franklin, site of the first newspaper plant in all the upper Louisiana territory west of St. Louis, the first institute of learning and the first Masonic Lodge west of St. Charles. It was the boyhood home of Kit Carson. Franklin later was destroyed by a series of great floods. But Boonville on the bluff side was secure. She kept pace with the changing times. Railroads came, and arterial highways, carrying traffic north and south, east and west.

Recently the Boonville Chamber of Commerce has sponsored a city hostess or courtesy officer plan by which a representative of the town greets tourists passing through and points out to them historical places of interest.

Foremost among these spots is Thespian Hall, the oldest surviving theater building west of the Alleghenies. During the Civil War it was used as a hospital for wounded soldiers and as a military prison. It was built in 1855-57.

Old Episcopal Church

Christ Episcopal church, 103 years old, is the oldest Episcopal church west of the Mississippi river. It is of beautiful Gothic revival design and houses an old and valuable organ.

The first land battle of the Civil war, the battle of Boonville, was fought four miles east of here. Won by the Federalists this battle was decisive in holding Missouri in the union.

Here too is one of America's most distinguished military schools, Kemper Military school. Founded in 1844 as a family school today it has a capacity of more than 100 and is one of the most all over the union and from several foreign countries. The late Will Rogers was a student at Kemper.

Not so proudly claimed by the Chamber of Commerce and the citizens of the town is the Missouri Training School for Boys, located here, and to often referred to as the Boonville Training school.

The largest cob pipe factory in the world is located in Boonville. Millions of pipes are shipped from here to every continent and numerous islands.

Williams and Vest

Walter Williams, dean of journalism and of international fame, began his career as a printer's devil in a Boonville newspaper office. The home of Senator George G. Vest, famous for his Eulogy to a Dog, still stands on Main street. David Barton is buried in Boonville's Walnut Grove cemetery.

Within an easy radius of the town are other historic spots. Arrow Rock, the home of three Missouri governors of the pioneer physician, Dr. Sappington of quinine fame, and the artist George Caleb Bingham, is 20 miles distant. The old inn at Arrow Rock draws tourists from every part of the country. The grave of General William Ashley, Missouri's first Lieutenant Governor, is located on an Indian mound west of Boonville.

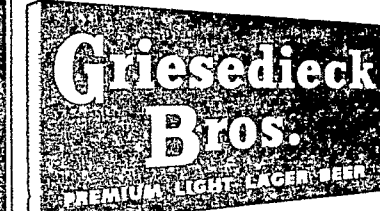

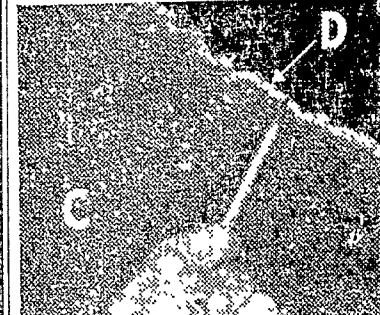

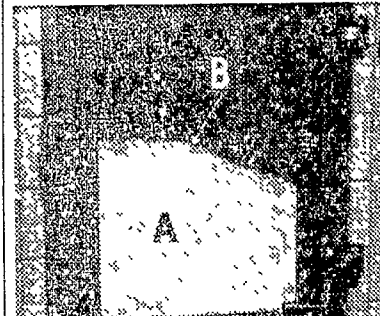

Across the river is historic Riverside, mansion built by Captain Joseph Kinney who made a fortune from his fleet of boats in the early 90s.

Otterville Beats Sacred Heart

The Sacred Heart basketball team split a double header with the Otterville team Wednesday night in games played on the Syracuse high school court.

The Sedalia B team winning their game by a score of 30 to 26 and the Sacred Heart Gremlins dropping the afterpiece by a score of 39 to 29.

Both games were well played and hotly contested throughout the B team high scorers were Jimmy Labus and Jimmy Falls with 11 points apiece closely followed by Jett with 8 points these three boys making all of the Sedalia team points.

The Gremlins-Panther game was hard fought from start to finish the Panthers jumping into a 13 to 4 lead before the Gremlins could get the range. However they settled down and at half time were trailing by three points 15 to 12. The tempo of the game increased during the last half and the loss of Labus and Maryn through fouls proved costly for the locals as well as their failure to connect at the free throw line missing 13 attempts.

For the Gremlins Bill Hodges led the scoring with 10 points while Fowler was high scorer for the Panthers with 18 points. Jay Paxton played an outstanding floor game for Sedalia and collected 5 points.

Friday night at Sacred Heart gym the Gremlins and the B team will meet the Mercy Academy team of Marshall and a girls volleyball game between Sacred Heart and Mercy Academy will start at 7:30.

Doubtful Cards Will Sponsor Club

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 1—(P)—The St. Louis Cardinals have been approached about sponsoring a baseball club at Fort Smith, Ark., but Cardinal owner Fred Saigh said, "It is very doubtful that we'll do anything about it."

Saigh disclosed a person apparently interested in the Fort Smith club telephoned him a week ago and they discussed the matter. "It's a little late to get started on it this time of year," Saigh said.

The New York Giants recently moved their Western Association franchise from Fort Smith to Enid, Okla. The Cardinals already own a Western Association club at St. Joseph, Mo. Under the rules of baseball, they could not have another connection in the same league.

Bounds And Henley Back With Tigers

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 1—(P)—Two men came off the injured list to be added to the University of Missouri squad for the Gator Bowl game against Maryland at Jacksonville, Fla., January 2.

Ken Bounds, veteran end who missed most of the season with an injured knee, and Bob Henley, sophomore halfback who suffered a broken foot mid-way in the season, have been cleared for duty by physicians.

Coach Blaik Defends Two-Platoon System

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(P)—Coach Earl (Red) Blaik of Army's football team rose up at a luncheon gathering and blasted in no uncertain words the "old guard" which would abolish the two-platoon system.

"We have the greatest football right now the country can possibly have," declared the head man of West Point's undefeated forces. "We would be downright nuts to go back to thinking in terms of 1934 and '35. Only the old guard is against the two-platoon."

Blaik, together with his team captain, John Trent, and his great quarterback, Arnold Galiffa, were here to accept the Lambert trophy, which is presented annually to the top team in the east. When the guests began tossing barbed questions, Blaik obliged them.

"The two-platoon game as we play it has much more speed than the old game, and it is safer," he declared. "We had only five time-outs due to injury all this season, and only one man did not return to the game."

Cards Won't Trade Pitcher Ted Wilks

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 30—(P)—Fred Saigh, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, prepared to leave for trade talks in New York but he said today he is doubtful he will land any of the players he wants.

Saigh has a meeting scheduled with Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers Saturday.

He said he has made up a list of the Cardinals he will not trade, and one of them is pitcher Ted Wilks, mentioned yesterday as a player eyed by the Dodgers.

Saigh's previously announced objectives are a right-hand hitting outfielder, an understudy for shortstop Marty Marion, and a catcher.

He plans to renew negotiations with officials of other clubs during the next two weeks.

Newcombe And Sievers Are 1949 Rookies

Outstanding Rookies Chosen By Baseball Writers' Association

By Joe Reichler

NEW YORK, Dec. 1—(P)—Pitcher Don Newcombe of the Brooklyn Dodgers and outfielder Ray Sievers of the St. Louis Browns have been named the outstanding rookies of the 1949 baseball season by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Two 24-man committees took part in the voting. Each committee was allowed to name only one man. The National League Writers picked Newcombe almost unanimously, giving him 21 of the 24 votes. Del Crandall, 19-year-old catcher of the Boston Braves drew the other three votes.

Sievers received the support of 10 of the American League Writers to double the total of Philadelphia Athletics' Alex Kellner, his nearest pursuer.

Rookie For Each League
 Naming the No. 1 rookies of each league represented a change in the annual balloting. Previously only one rookie was chosen for both circuits. Alvin Dark, Boston Braves' shortstop won it last year, and Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn's second base star, was chosen in 1947.

Although he wasn't brought up from their Montreal Farm club until May 25, the 23-year-old Newcombe won 17 and lost eight for the Dodgers to rank as their best pitcher. He had five shut-outs numbered among his 19 complete games. At one stretch he ran up a string of 33 consecutive scoreless innings.

The heavy-hitting Sievers earned the award by clubbing out a batting average of .306 in 1949 games. His extra base hits included 28 doubles, one triple and 16 home runs. The 23-year-old slugger batted in 92 runs for the seventh place Browns. Kellner, the runner-up, won 20 games for the fifth place Athletics.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 1—(P)—The Split-T is improperly named. It should be known as the "Sliding T."

That's straight from the man — Coach Don Faurot of Missouri — who invented the so-called Split-T football offensive.

The Faurot system, which will show in three teams in Jan. 2 bowl games, features a quarterback sliding parallel to a wide-spread line on keep-it or pitch out plays.

Faurot's own Missouri Tigers will meet Coach Jim Tatum's Maryland Old Liners in the Gator bowl at Jacksonville, Fla. Last Jan. 1 Missouri lost, 24-23 to Clemson in the same bowl.

Oklahoma, coached by Charles (Bud) Wilkinson, will make its second successive trip to the Sugar bowl. The Sooners whipped North Carolina 14-6 at New Orleans last Jan. 1. They meet Louisiana State this time.

"The sliding quarterback and not the wide spread in the line is the real difference between the system we use and the regular T," Faurot said. "I spread my line when I was coaching at Kirksville (Mo.) Teachers (1926-1934).

Faurot began tinkering with the sliding quarterback idea at Missouri around 1940, the big idea being to split the defense. After using both single wing and Split-T in 1941, a Big Seven championship year for Missouri, Faurot shifted entirely to the present T the next season.

Lacking a better name, the system was tabbed the Split-T.

Child Returns Home To Find Parents Dead

CENTRAL FALLS, R. I., Dec. 1—(P)—A little girl who heard "Mommy tell Daddy to get out" at breakfast Wednesday came home from school at lunchtime to find them both dead on the bathroom floor.

A medical examiner said Anthony Marks, 46-year-old janitor, bludgeoned his wife to death with a blackjack and then shot himself with a pistol.

They were found in their first floor tenement by seven-year-old Barbara, who ran to neighbors. They said she was too young to understand what she had discovered.

Oregon has 31 mountain peaks more than 6,000 feet high. The highest is Mt. Hood, 11,245 feet.

Find Body Of Man Hanging By A Towel

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 1—(P)—The body of a man was found hanging by a bath towel from pipes in the bathroom of a hotel room here Wednesday.

Detectives said a social security card in the man's billfold bore the identification of Charles Boettcher, 49, of New York. A coast guard card dated 1944 listed Charles Boettcher as a recreation director.

Officers said there also was a snapshot of a woman and two children with this note written on the back: "To Mary, to Virginia and Charles, Jr., and the family. Sorry it had to end this way."

A room clerk at the hotel said the man registered Saturday as Charles Beiman, Oakland, Calif.

BEWARE!

The CORN BORER

Has Become A Real MENACE!

"The European corn borer has become established in all counties of North Missouri and as far south as Highway 50," according to a bulletin published by the College of Agriculture, University of Missouri.

Conditions favorable to the borer caused an alarming increase in 1949, according to farmers checking their own and neighborhood fields.

Many of these farmers are changing to Peppard Funk G Hybrids because of evidence they find of their resistance to corn borer.

NOW IS THE TIME to check corn for resistance to corn borer damage. It's easy when you know how. Peppard's corn research department has prepared a simple bulletin telling you what to look for and how to look.

Schools Will Get 5 Million

Many House Members Had Hoped To Boost Fund To 8 Million

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 1 — (P)—The Missouri legislature gave public schools a $5,000,000 present today.

The 15½ million dollar bill appropriating money out of the postwar reserve fund passed the House with just a ripple of argument. There was none in the Senate.

It now goes to the governor. He can reduce any item or cut it out altogether. He cannot increase any of them.

The $5,000,000 amount for schools is in addition to the regular one-third of general revenue, estimated to approximate $70,000,000 for the two year fiscal period which began last July 1.

Stuck To Lower Level

Many House members had hoped to boost the state school fund item to the 8,000,000 called for as the original bill passed the House. But twice a joint House Senate conference stuck to the lower level.

This time, however, the conference cut out a proviso that might have cut into the state aid money. As first suggested in conference the bill provided that any money the schools might get from a pending $2,090,000 insurance rate fine would be deducted from the $5,000,000 amount.

The House rejected that yesterday. The conference committee took it out today, giving the schools the flat amount of $5,000,000 with no strings attached. Any amount from the insurance fines would be an extra windfall.

Ten Million Postwar Fund

Both Houses passed and sent to the governor another bill which added $10,000,000 to the postwar fund. That was necessary because the fund didn't have enough money in it originally to meet the appropriations set out in the big building program bill.

The two houses also passed a $3,449,000 catch all appropriation. As it goes to the governor it provides for tax rebates to Missourians who paid more than they were required in income, liquor or gasoline taxes.

Other School Amounts

These other amounts were provided for state schools and institutions in the big appropriation measure:

The University of Missouri at Columbia—$1,375,000 for a new auditorium and $250,000 for repairs.

Roll School of Mines—$150,000 for repairs.

Northeast State College at Kirksville—$600,000 for a new auditorium and $125,000 for repairs.

Northwest at Maryville—$575,000 for a new classroom building and $125,000 for repairs.

Central at Warrensburg—$600,000 for an Applied Arts building and $125,000 for repairs.

Southeast at Cape Girardeau—$550,000 for a Science building and $125,000 for repairs.

Southwest at Springfield—$700,000 for a library building and $125,000 for repairs.

Lincoln university for Negroes here—$750,000 for a gymnasium and recreational building and $125,000 for repairs.

Helped To State Hospitals

State hospital No. 1 at Fulton—$500,000 for repairs and for extensive rebuilding of the power and heating plants.

No. 2 at St. Joseph, No. 3 at Nevada, No. 4 at Farmington and the Marshall-Carrollton school for feeble-minded—$150,000 each for repairs.

St. Louis state hospital—$400,000 for a laundry building, $120,000 for an apartment building for doctors and $250,000 for repairs.

feeble-minded—$100,000 for repairs.

State Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Mt. Vernon—$100,000 for repairs.

Confederate Home at Higginsville—$25,000 for repairs.

School for the Deaf at Fulton—$100,000 for repairs.

Training School for Girls at Chillicothe—$20,000 for a dairy barn.

Tipton School for Negro Girls—$5,000 for repairs.

Capitol here—$400,000 for repairs, refurnishing and cleaning.

State office building here—$100,000 for repairs and waterproofing.

Hospital For Senile Patients

A $25,000 fund was set up to finance a study of possible sites of a hospital for senile patients.

The fund was set with the view the O'Reilly General Hospital in Springfield might be made available to the state.

A $100,000 fund was approved for possible purchase of land just east of the state highway department building here. The land now is occupied by old houses, but the state is considering its purchase as a parking lot, to be used by employees in the highway department and in the projected new office building. The site of the new office building is just across the street east of the land.

The adjutant general would be provided $107,750 for repairs to armories now used by the National Guard and either owned or leased by the state.

Cohen Before Grand Jury

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 1—(P)—Mickey Cohen, a blonde, and a former Kansas City gambler were called before a federal grand jury Wednesday. But what the jury wanted remained a secret.

There were hints it involved a current Kansas City probe of crime and gambling conditions. The government agent in that case is sitting in with the jury here.

He is Max Goldschein, special assistant to the attorney general. But Goldschein declined to tell reporters what it's all about.

The subpoenaed trio said they didn't know.

But Sam Tucker, 56, businessman, told reporters "I am a former Kansas City gambler." He said he has spent considerable time there and formerly operated a night club. Kansas City police said they don't know him.

Mrs. Tobl Prenskey, the blonde, says she's a sister of Morris Klein, a Kansas City politician, but left there five years ago. She formerly operated a Hollywood restaurant, after both Tucker and Cohen had leased it, and says she now manages the hosiery department of a department store.

Cohen himself said "I don't even know whether I've ever been in Kansas City. I know I don't know anybody there are they having an investigation?"

Cohen is a well-known local gambler, target of an assassination attempt last summer in which his bodyguard, Neddie Herbert, was killed.

In Kansas City police said they had no record on Mrs. Prenskey.

Mrs. Prenskey said she was a sister of Morris (Snag) Klein, Kansas City gambler and Democratic precinct captain. Klein was convicted of returning illegal votes in the 1946 primary election and was sentenced to 18 months imprisonment. The U. S. supreme court confirmed the conviction Nov. 7. He is under subpoena to appear before a federal grand jury here.

A 1949 Chevrolet coach driven by Olan Wilson, route 1, Warsaw was damaged to the extent of about $300 when it struck a horse near the Rice Hatchery on south highway 65 about 6.30 o'clock Tuesday evening.

Wilson said he didn't see the horse until they hit. He thought the animal jumped suddenly out of a ditch and bounded in front of his automobile.

City Hall Market in 1906.

"Jack" Kehl, who lives on a farm in Lake Creek township, comes up with an old-time picture of Kehl's Meat Market, which as early as 1906 was located in the west end of the present city hall building.

The Kehl family came to Sedalia from Benton county in November, 1889. The man on the left wearing that big hunk of meat was J. G. Kehl, father of Jack and Joe, who went into the meat business.

In the background, the young man wearing a cap is none other than Rolla Lopp, in the wholesale meat business today. Next to him is Frank Williams deceased, whom old-timers will recall ran a grocery at Main street and Grand avenue. The man in the foreground at the counter is Barney Euchs, deceased; on his right in the background, George Eads, deceased. At the extreme right is Jack Kehl, who brought in the picture.

Jack and Joe Kehl operated the meat market until 1923. Jack recalls the early days when he delivered meat on horseback to the State Fair grounds. Joe is still living and resides on West Main street.

Dear Santa,
Dear Diary,
Dear Me

By Cynthia Lowry
AP Newsfeatures Writer
All I want in my Christmas stocking is a diary.

Not just any diary, but a one-year, big one, leather-bound and designed to endure through the years.

After considerable reading of biographies and autobiographies, I have decided to become what I believe is known as a diarist.

It is pretty apparent that all people who are walking toward greatness or even success manage somehow in their busy lives to keep a journal of their doings. Obviously most people don't know they are going to be fascinating enough to rate a book, so millions of people must scribble down their doings, thoughts and perceptions — just on a long chance.

Take Mrs. Roosevelt, for instance. She undoubtedly has been keeping diaries and letters since girlhood. If she hadn't managed to note down her activities day-by-day, she could never have written any of her books.

Mr. Churchill kept a meticulous journal and it's been money in the bank. Even military men, such as General Eisenhower, have some sort of a diary system which can be turned into volumes and royalties.

I read the other day that Zharoff, the mystery man of Monaco, kept a journal of impressions for years — and that they were burned without anyone else ever reading them. This is the one kind of diary which I do not propose to keep.

An elderly relative of my family, never a writing man, turned up a diary he had written some 60 years ago. He spent days pouring over his young manhood. He was proud as punch of it, but as far as I could tell it gave a day-by-day report on the weather, the number of head colds current in the family and the number of miles he had walked each day to undisclosed destinations. Anyway it was fun for him to read in his twilight years.

About a year ago I decided I'd note down some day-to-day impressions myself, and set aside a dime notebook for the express purpose. Now, only a few months later, I find four entries in it, mostly concerned with climate, clothes I wore and confusing initials, obviously referring to people, but I don't know who. The rest of the notebook is filled with numbers, scratched in the course of balancing a bank book and doodles which a psychiatrist would find more interesting than a historian.

I'm going to give diary-keeping one more chance by getting a journal that will give me a chance to expand. I shall note down all amusing remarks I hear mention of all the famous people I see or hear about and keep away from items like "must buy stockings." But I shan't run afoul of the old diarist's trick of confiding my heart's desire, complete with initials. That's gotten too many people in trouble already.

Becoming a diarist is my one bid for posterity. Who knows? If I copy enough items from the gossip columns, some day I may be able to write my memoirs.

A thin coat of white or aluminum paint on a screen will make the interior of a house less visible from the outside.

BE QUICK To Treat BRONCHITIS

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly alleviates the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

These Things Will Happen If The Anti-Trust Lawyers Have Their Way

When the anti-trust lawyers from Washington filed their suit against A&P, we told the American people, our customers, our suppliers and our employees how this attack would affect them.

We said that this attack, if successful, would mean the end of A&P as you know it.

We said that it would mean higher food prices for American consumers.

We said that if they succeed in destroying A&P the way would be cleared for the destruction of other efficient large-scale retailers.

We thought the American people were entitled to know about this threat to their welfare and standard of living.

Since that time, however, the anti-trust lawyers have been making speeches, talking over the radio, writing letters and giving stories to the newspapers, in which they say we are all wrong.

They say that this suit will not close a single A&P store; and that instead of raising food prices it will lower them.

And they have tried to give the impression that nobody will be hurt by this decision except the present owners of A&P.

We don't think that the American people want to be confused by these statements. We know that when they have the facts, they will understand that this case can affect the living standards and the way of life of every American citizen.

Here are the facts:

It Will Destroy A&P

The anti-trust lawyers have repeatedly stated that "the suit will not result in the closing of a single A&P store", and that "the purpose of the suit is to enjoin A&P from continuing activity which has been held to violate the law."

The fact is that the suit is designed not only to "enjoin" A&P from alleged illegal activities, but actually to destroy the company.

Here is what they have asked the court to do:

Break up A&P's retail stores into seven groups, each of which must be sold to different owners, and operated under new management.

Order us to sell A&P's factories, which produce many of the fine foods you find in our stores, to still other new owners.

Prevent any of the seven groups of stores from operating any of the factories.

None of the present owners, who have made A&P what it is today, can have anything to do with either the stores or the factories.

The first A&P store was opened 90 years ago. For the past 50 years the company has been managed by George L. Hartford and John A. Hartford.

These are the men who have pioneered the policy of low-cost, low-profit, low-price food retailing which has won A&P the patronage of millions of American families and given them more good food for their money.

If the anti-trust lawyers have their way, these men and other company executives will be completely out of the picture. No one can predict what the policies of the new owners of the various parts of A&P will be.

No one can predict that they will sell the same quality food at the same low prices, or that they will keep the same employees, or give them the same high wages, short hours, pensions and security.

Nor, despite the anti-trust lawyers' statement, can anyone tell how many A&P stores will remain open or will be closed.

So, while there may be a food store where your A&P is now located, it won't be your A&P store.

Make no mistake about it. If the anti-trust lawyers win their suit it will mean the end of A&P as you know it.

Your Food Will Cost More

The anti-trust lawyers have repeatedly stated that the suit will not increase, but should decrease, grocery prices.

Anybody who has ever shopped in an A&P store, or has ever taken a high-school course in economics, knows better than that.

Everyone knows that A&P's policy has always been to keep costs and profits at a minimum so that it can sell good food cheap.

The very heart of the anti-trust lawyers' case is that A&P's methods, which they claim are illegal, have enabled the company to undersell competitors.

How can anyone possibly say that you will get lower food prices by eliminating the company that has done so much to bring them down?

Actually, there is no question that this suit, if successful, will mean higher food prices for A&P customers.

Here is just one of a number of reasons:

We manufacture many of the quality foods we sell in our stores, such as Bokar, Red Circle and Eight O'Clock coffees, Ann Page foods, White House milk, and many others.

The anti-trust lawyers admit that we pass along these manufacturing savings to our customers in the form of lower prices.

But, the anti-trust lawyers have asked the court to order us to get rid of our manufacturing facilities, which would put an end to all these savings.

This means that if these A&P brands continued to be manufactured, you would have to pay higher prices for them wherever you found them.

The anti-trust lawyers say that food prices would go down in other stores. They claim that food manufacturers would be able to sell cheaper to other grocers because they would not have to make up alleged losses they now incur in selling to A&P.

This, of course, is pure nonsense. The suppliers who voluntarily seek our business and are now rushing to our defense obviously find it profitable to deal with A&P. Actually, their sales to this company enable them to build up their volume, reduce their costs, and sell more cheaply to all grocers.

The elimination of A&P from the picture would tend to increase, rather than decrease, the wholesale cost of food; and this, in turn, will be reflected in increases in retail prices.

Make no mistake about it. If the anti-trust lawyers succeed in putting A&P out of business you will find your food bill is higher.

Others Will Be Hurt

The anti-trust lawyers have insisted that this suit will not affect other distributors, "nor will it destroy any efficiencies of mass distribution."

The fact is that the anti-trust lawyers ask the court to break up the company, make it get rid of its admittedly legal manufacturing operations and in general destroy many of the efficiencies which have enabled it to sell food cheaper.

If such an attack is successful, it immediately raises the likelihood of similar attacks on other chain stores.

The anti-trust lawyers are saying that they "do not contemplate any other suits of this nature at this time."

But that does not mean that they cannot undertake such suits at any future time if they win this case.

As a matter of fact, the anti-trust lawyers made practically the same allegations against two of our largest competitors that they are making against us. And it can also be used as the basis for an attack against other grocers and merchants in other lines.

There are today literally thousands of chain stores, voluntary groups and individual merchants operating with the same methods and in the same pattern here under attack.

If A&P is destroyed, no businessman could safely pursue an aggressive sales policy designed to lower prices and give his customers a better deal if by so doing he takes business away from any competitor.

Even if the anti-trust lawyers have no intention now of prosecuting other suits, a decision against A&P will establish a precedent that could be used by the present anti-trust lawyers, or any future anti-trust lawyers, to destroy any efficient business that buys cheaply, sells cheaply, and grows big in the process.

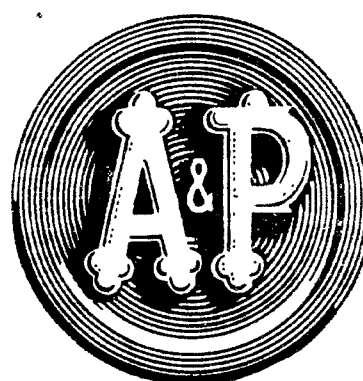

Such a decision would mean the end of the vigorous, healthy price competition which has given this country the highest standard of living ever enjoyed by any people anywhere in the history of the world.

The anti-trust lawyers are trying to give a new interpretation to the anti-trust laws that, instead of preserving competition, will reduce competition.

They are trying, by court decision, to impose a new kind of economic policy on the people of this country.

Make no mistake about it. If they succeed in destroying A&P they will be destroying the method of distribution that has helped make the American standard of living the envy of the world.

Diapers, Vitamins, Blankets Among Gifts U.S. Youngsters Send Overseas

SMILES ACROSS THE MILES: Unpacking an educational gift box sent to them by the American Junior Red Cross, these Parisian boys glow with excitement as they examine the treasures inside.

By Wade Jones
Written for NEA Service
WASHINGTON —(NEA)—A move toward the world understanding which adults have failed to achieve is being made by 19,000,000 youngsters of the American Red Cross.

In the last fiscal year, the organization sent $1,430,000 worth of goods to 25 countries and areas of dollars that is important. The essence of the program is in the kinds of materials being sent. They range from water color paintings to toothpaste, from sun glasses to diapers. All shipments were in response to specific requests from the Junior Red Cross in recipient countries.

In the shipments to the Middle East were 10,000 baby blankets, crayons, chalk and toys. To Italy went 300 pairs of sun glasses for pre-tubercular children and 7,302,000 vitamin tablets among other items. To Pacific islands went 10,000 yards of cotton dress material together with the buttons, thread and needles to complete the job.

ordinating committee in the three western zones of Germany. "I was overwhelmed by the performance of the American Junior Red Cross members in their production program," he said. "I realize the possibilities resulting from Junior Red Cross work in overcoming the present conflicting tension between nations and in promoting a new behavior between people."

Approximately 500,000 gift boxes, containing school supplies, toilet goods toys, sewing kits, etc., were sent to overseas children in the last year. About 12,000 of these went to displaced children emigrating to this country. In addition to the gift boxes the young emigrants received 5,000 pairs of shoes and 5,000 soft toys, while clipboard supplies of 50 chests of recreation equipment and 50 book libraries shortened their voyage to their new homes.

English language grammars and readers, books of other types and maps were provided at embarkation centers. The most popular of all the books was the World Atlas. "People will stand in line for hours to get a look at an Atlas," a Red Cross worker said.

Another worker told of seeing a small boy snatch the first pair of leather shoes he had ever seen. "He hid in a corner with the shoes tucked in his blouse and refused to come out and try them on, for fear they would be taken away from him."

The Red Cross received 95,000 letters of thanks last year from the children overseas, many written in garbled classroom English. "It was an extraordinary surprise for me to find a gift box of yours to receive," wrote Ine Peters, of Venlo, Holland. "I preserve the marbles some more till the weather be better. It is here still cold and damp weather. Mama use the soap to washing me. She smell very fine. Once more heartily thanks, with friendly greetings for you all together."

Rene Thebault, writing from an undecipherable town in France, said, in his letter of thanks: "I remember to have seen a little boy who could not open his parcel so much he was glad." And, from Machiko Kado, of Hiroshima, Japan: "Our homes were burnt by the bomb and since we are lading a new life once again, we are unable to repay you for all you have done for us. But we hope to repay you as soon as we can. Let us become greater friends in this coming future."

Order Check on Wire Tapping

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—(AP)—Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan today ordered all FBI agents who investigated the Coplon-Gubitchev spy conspiracy case to appear Monday at a hearing to determine whether illegal wire-tapping was used.

The order also told the government to show cause on Monday why all evidence obtained through wire-tapping should not be suppressed and why any indictment obtained by these methods against ex-government girl Judith Coplon should not be dismissed. The orders were obtained by Attorney Archibald Palmer in a continuing fight to keep Miss Coplon from going to trial with her accused co-conspirator, Soviet Engineer Valentin A. Gubitchev.

The petite, 28-year-old Miss Coplon and Gubitchev, a suspended employee of the United Nations, are scheduled to go on trial before Judge Ryan Dec. 27. A four-count indictment charges them with conspiring to steal secret government documents for transmittal to Russia. Miss Coplon, formerly employed in the justice department, stood trial alone in Washington last summer and was convicted on a spy charge. She was sentenced to 40 months to 10 years in prison, but is free on bail pending appeal.

Looking Backward

Forty Years Ago

Garrett Perdue, a former Se-dalian, now owner of a ranch in New Mexico, arrived for a visit with relatives and friends.

E. E. Elliott, timekeeper at the M. K. & T. offices, and family returned from a ten days' pleasure visit in Texas.

Ernest Green and Virgil Bryant left for Butte, Mont., where they intend to locate.

Harry Waldman, Harry Glenn and Rae Nichols returned from Kansas City where they attended a football game.

Deputy Sheriff James R. Card

left for Mt. Vernon, Ind., to return with a man arrested there on a charge of having stolen a horse and buggy from Alderman R. M. Olmsted in this city September 21.

Rev. F. J. Hart, former pastor of the Second Congregational church, has accepted the pastorate of the Olive Branch church in St. Louis and left for that place this afternoon. The Rev. Eli Silfer, formerly of Buchanan, N. D., succeeds him here.
